

The Hillsborough Recorder.

J. D. CAMERON, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR. TRUTH FEARS NO FOE, AND SHUNS NO SCRUTINY. NEW SERIES—Vol. 2, No. 16—HILLSBOROUGH, N. C. FEBRUARY 25, 1874. Old Series, Vol. 53.

1873. 1873.
NEW GOOD.
HICKSON & TYACK,
DANVILLE, V. I.
Are now receiving their Fall Stock
Dry Goods
Recently purchased in the best markets, and embracing all the latest styles of CLOTHING, HATS, BOOTS, SHOES, BLEACHED & BROWN
Blankets, Shawls,
Bed Spreads, &c.
Korsets, Corsets, &c.
and all the latest styles of the
CHARLOTTESVILLE WOOLEN MILLS.
So widely known and appreciated for durability.
We have also received our stock of
BOOTS and SHOES
And have selected those goods with great care,
being able to warrant every pair sold.
Our assortment of CLOTHING, HATS, BOOTS, SHOES,
and BLEACHED & BROWN goods, is complete,
and we are enabled to sell them at the lowest prices.
CROCKERY & GLASS-WARE STORE.
We have added largely to the stock of this department, and are now offering a large and beautiful variety of
PAINTED WARE, CHINA, GLASS, &c.
In addition to the PAINTED WARE,
we have also received a large stock of
PAINTED GLASS, &c.
In the GROCERY DEPARTMENT.
We keep always on hand
Sugars, Teas, Coffee, Bacon, Flour,
Lard, &c.,
at the lowest market price.
IN THE FURNITURE DEPARTMENT.
We have received a new lot of Walnut
Bedsteads and Bureaus
from the W. K. F. at prices very much below those ordinarily asked. We have also a beautiful assortment of
Walnut Chamber Sets, Fancy Painted Sets,
Chairs, Wash-Stands, Bed-Stands, &c.
We are also receiving a large stock of
PAINTED WARE, CHINA, GLASS, &c.
In addition to the PAINTED WARE,
we have also received a large stock of
PAINTED GLASS, &c.
In the GROCERY DEPARTMENT.
We keep always on hand
Sugars, Teas, Coffee, Bacon, Flour,
Lard, &c.,
at the lowest market price.
IN THE FURNITURE DEPARTMENT.
We have received a new lot of Walnut
Bedsteads and Bureaus
from the W. K. F. at prices very much below those ordinarily asked. We have also a beautiful
assortment of
Walnut Chamber Sets, Fancy Painted Sets,
Chairs, Wash-Stands, Bed-Stands, &c.
We are also receiving a large stock of
PAINTED WARE, CHINA, GLASS, &c.
In addition to the PAINTED WARE,
we have also received a large stock of
PAINTED GLASS, &c.

SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR
THE FAVORITE HOME REMEDY
THIS unrivaled Medicine is warranted not to contain a single particle of MERCURY, or any injurious mineral substance, but is PURELY VEGETABLE.
Containing those Southern Roots and Herbs,
which an all-wise Providence has placed in continuous and abundant supply in the soil of our country. It is the only medicine that will cure all the diseases caused by Derangement of the Liver and Bowels.
Simmons' Liver Regulator or Medicine, is essentially a Family Medicine; and by being used early in the progress of the disease, it will prevent the necessity of using any other medicines.
After every forty days trial it is still receiving the most unqualified testimonials of its virtues
from persons of the highest character and respectability. It is a medicine that will cure all the diseases of the Liver and Bowels.
EFFECTUAL SPECIFIC
For Dyspepsia or Indigestion.
Armed with the ANTIDOTE, all climates and changes of water and food may be faced without fear. As a Remedy in Malarious Fevers, Bowel Complaints, Rheumatism, Jaundice, Nausea,
IT HAS NO EQUAL.
It is the cheapest, Purest and Best Family Medicine in the World.
It is manufactured only by
J. H. ZEILIN & CO.,
Macon, Ga., and Philadelphia.
Price, 25 Cts. Sold by all Druggists.
Feb. 1st.

FLUID EXTRACT
DR. J. D. CAMERON'S
DRUGS
The only known remedy for DRUGS
And a positive remedy for DRUGS
Diabetes, Dyspepsia, Nervous Debility, Dropsy,
Non-retention or incontinence of Urine, Irritation, Inflammation or Ulceration of the BLADDER & KIDNEYS.
SPERMATORRHOEA.
Leucorrhoea or Whites, Discharge of the Prostate Gland, Stone in the Bladder, Catarrhus Utricle or Bricketest Deposit and Mucus or Milky Discharges.
KEARNEY'S
EXTRACT BUCHU
A Physician in attendance to answer correspondence and give advice gratis.
Send stamp for Pamphlet, free.
Depot, 101 Duane St. New York.
A Physician in attendance to answer correspondence and give advice gratis.
Send stamp for Pamphlet, free.
Depot, 101 Duane St. New York.
A Physician in attendance to answer correspondence and give advice gratis.
Send stamp for Pamphlet, free.
Depot, 101 Duane St. New York.

WOMAN'S LOVE.
As Gertrude Von Der Warts sat
singing the cradle hymn which had lulled her
baby asleep, she heard the tramp of
the court-way of the castle.
Suddenly the door was opened, and
men rushed rudely into the apartment,
where she sat guarding her infant.
"Where have you hid them?" asked
the chief of the band of soldiers, in menacing
tones, as he rudely clutched the infant.
Her woman's instinct at once distinguished that these she loved were in danger, and
she answered, in trembling tones:
"Indeed, sir, I know not. I have not
seen them."
"Wife and sister of the murderer, tell
the truth!" he replied savagely. "Our
queen—Agnes of Hungary, the daughter
of our murdered Emperor Albert—has sent
us, with the sword of vengeance, to hunt
to the ends of the earth, for the men who have taken her father's life. On them and their children shall fall the punishment."
"Merciful Heaven!" gasped out Gertrude,
as the dreadful news broke upon her, "has
the Emperor been killed? Oh, sir! my husband and my brother had no hand in
the cruel deed!"
"Pate not with the woman," said one of
the soldiers. "Do our Queen's bidding.
There is the child."
In an instant, the mother, wild with ter-
ror, flew to the sleeping babe. It awoke,
and stretched out its arms to her. She attempted to take it, but a sword gleamed
between her and the infant.
"No! no!" she screamed, in thrilling
tones of agony and fear, "take not my child
from me! Kill me, if you will, but do
not by the love you bear your own little one,
spare my innocent babe! Kill me, but
spare my child!"
Intent on their bloody purpose, the soldiers heeded not the cries of agony, which
went up from the mother's heart, as plun-
ging their swords into the child, they trampled
out of the room with heavy steps, and
mounting their horses, galloped away from
the castle.
There are moments in the life of agony, when it seems as if human nature must
sink and expire under the frightful ordeal.
Such moments had come to Gertrude Von
Der Warts, as stunned by the horrid deed,
she stood, speechless, by the pale little
victim of woman's revenge.
All that night, sad and silent, she sat
beside her dying babe, and when morning
broke over the earth, low wails went up
from the room where mourned the childless
woman.
To reach her husband was now the one
wish of Gertrude. The tie that bound her
to the secluded castle was broken—her
child was dead. But she was a prisoner in
her house; for a guard had been placed a-
round the castle to prevent the escape of her husband and brother, in case they should
be secreted there.
Enduring the vigilance of the soldiers,
however, she escaped. The news of her husband's arrest and imprisonment had
reached her, and, urged on by the most
devoted love, she made her way to the royal
chateau. Thence, herself, in an agony
of grief, at the feet of the widowed Empress
Elizabeth and her daughter Agnes, she ex-
claimed:
"Spare him! Oh, spare my husband! He
is innocent of the crime of which he is accused! My only child has been slaughtered
by your soldiers; let one victim suffice;
spare me—oh, spare my husband!"
The frantic prayer fell on stony hearts.
Silent and stern sat the Queen and her
daughter. There was no pity in their
breasts—no tenderness in their words.
Reputed and driven from the royal residence, Gertrude hovered around the prison that contained her husband. As death
drew near, love grew stronger, and supported her fainting spirit in the dark valley
of the shadow of death through which it was
passing.
"N-now w-will you m-marry me?"
"No!"
"Well, I don't care, a straw whether
you'll marry me or not. You won't get
me into that canal again!"
Nor did he again essay his fortune in the
uncertain deep. Shivering and chattering
with his teeth, he quietly departed, and returning to his home a sadder, and, let us
hope, a wiser man.
A married man at Ottumwa felt unhappy and lonely himself. His wife and sisters cut him down. Then he tried to butt his brains out against the wall. The
woman interfered, and told him that the City Marshal came. That functionary
cleared out the meddlers, and told the
frantic youth to wait as long as he wanted to. He waited three times and
quit.
Jinks had been indulging too freely in
ardent spirits. At a street corner his hat
dropped into a gully. Said Jinks: "I know—if I pick it up I'll fall—if I fall
you won't pick me up—good night!"
And he walked off with a smile of
satisfaction, remembering innumerable zig-
zags as he went, leaving his hat in the gut-
ter.
A boarding establishment.—A chicken
stealer.

WOMAN'S LOVE.
As Gertrude Von Der Warts sat
singing the cradle hymn which had lulled her
baby asleep, she heard the tramp of
the court-way of the castle.
Suddenly the door was opened, and
men rushed rudely into the apartment,
where she sat guarding her infant.
"Where have you hid them?" asked
the chief of the band of soldiers, in menacing
tones, as he rudely clutched the infant.
Her woman's instinct at once dis-
tinguished that these she loved were in danger, and
she answered, in trembling tones:
"Indeed, sir, I know not. I have not
seen them."
"Wife and sister of the murderer, tell
the truth!" he replied savagely. "Our
queen—Agnes of Hungary, the daughter
of our murdered Emperor Albert—has sent
us, with the sword of vengeance, to hunt
to the ends of the earth, for the men who have taken her father's life. On them and
their children shall fall the punishment."
"Merciful Heaven!" gasped out Gertrude,
as the dreadful news broke upon her, "has
the Emperor been killed? Oh, sir! my husband and my brother had no hand in
the cruel deed!"
"Pate not with the woman," said one of
the soldiers. "Do our Queen's bidding.
There is the child."
In an instant, the mother, wild with ter-
ror, flew to the sleeping babe. It awoke,
and stretched out its arms to her. She at-
tempted to take it, but a sword gleamed
between her and the infant.
"No! no!" she screamed, in thrilling
tones of agony and fear, "take not my child
from me! Kill me, if you will, but do
not by the love you bear your own little one,
spare my innocent babe! Kill me, but
spare my child!"
Intent on their bloody purpose, the soldiers heeded not the cries of agony, which
went up from the mother's heart, as plun-
ging their swords into the child, they trampled
out of the room with heavy steps, and
mounting their horses, galloped away from
the castle.
There are moments in the life of ag-
ony, when it seems as if human nature must
sink and expire under the frightful ordeal.
Such moments had come to Gertrude Von
Der Warts, as stunned by the horrid deed,
she stood, speechless, by the pale little
victim of woman's revenge.
All that night, sad and silent, she sat
beside her dying babe, and when morning
broke over the earth, low wails went up
from the room where mourned the childless
woman.
To reach her husband was now the one
wish of Gertrude. The tie that bound her
to the secluded castle was broken—her
child was dead. But she was a prisoner in
her house; for a guard had been placed a-
round the castle to prevent the escape of her
husband and brother, in case they should
be secreted there.
Enduring the vigilance of the soldiers,
however, she escaped. The news of her
husband's arrest and imprisonment had
reached her, and, urged on by the most
devoted love, she made her way to the royal
chateau. Thence, herself, in an agony
of grief, at the feet of the widowed Empress
Elizabeth and her daughter Agnes, she ex-
claimed:
"Spare him! Oh, spare my husband! He
is innocent of the crime of which he is accused! My only child has been slaughtered
by your soldiers; let one victim suffice;
spare me—oh, spare my husband!"
The frantic prayer fell on stony hearts.
Silent and stern sat the Queen and her
daughter. There was no pity in their
breasts—no tenderness in their words.
Reputed and driven from the royal resi-
dence, Gertrude hovered around the pri-
son that contained her husband. As death
drew near, love grew stronger, and supported her fainting spirit in the dark valley
of the shadow of death through which it was
passing.
"N-now w-will you m-marry me?"
"No!"
"Well, I don't care, a straw whether
you'll marry me or not. You won't get
me into that canal again!"
Nor did he again essay his fortune in the
uncertain deep. Shivering and chattering
with his teeth, he quietly departed, and returning to his home a sadder, and, let us
hope, a wiser man.
A married man at Ottumwa felt un-
happy and lonely himself. His wife and
sisters cut him down. Then he tried to
butt his brains out against the wall. The
woman interfered, and told him that the
City Marshal came. That functionary
cleared out the meddlers, and told the
frantic youth to wait as long as he wanted to. He waited three times and
quit.
Jinks had been indulging too freely in
ardent spirits. At a street corner his hat
dropped into a gully. Said Jinks: "I know—if I pick it up I'll fall—if I fall
you won't pick me up—good night!"
And he walked off with a smile of
satisfaction, remembering innumerable zig-
zags as he went, leaving his hat in the gut-
ter.
A boarding establishment.—A chicken
stealer.

WOMAN'S LOVE.
As Gertrude Von Der Warts sat
singing the cradle hymn which had lulled her
baby asleep, she heard the tramp of
the court-way of the castle.
Suddenly the door was opened, and
men rushed rudely into the apartment,
where she sat guarding her infant.
"Where have you hid them?" asked
the chief of the band of soldiers, in menacing
tones, as he rudely clutched the infant.
Her woman's instinct at once dis-
tinguished that these she loved were in danger, and
she answered, in trembling tones:
"Indeed, sir, I know not. I have not
seen them."
"Wife and sister of the murderer, tell
the truth!" he replied savagely. "Our
queen—Agnes of Hungary, the daughter
of our murdered Emperor Albert—has sent
us, with the sword of vengeance, to hunt
to the ends of the earth, for the men who have taken her father's life. On them and
their children shall fall the punishment."
"Merciful Heaven!" gasped out Gertrude,
as the dreadful news broke upon her, "has
the Emperor been killed? Oh, sir! my husband and my brother had no hand in
the cruel deed!"
"Pate not with the woman," said one of
the soldiers. "Do our Queen's bidding.
There is the child."
In an instant, the mother, wild with ter-
ror, flew to the sleeping babe. It awoke,
and stretched out its arms to her. She at-
tempted to take it, but a sword gleamed
between her and the infant.
"No! no!" she screamed, in thrilling
tones of agony and fear, "take not my child
from me! Kill me, if you will, but do
not by the love you bear your own little one,
spare my innocent babe! Kill me, but
spare my child!"
Intent on their bloody purpose, the soldiers heeded not the cries of agony, which
went up from the mother's heart, as plun-
ging their swords into the child, they trampled
out of the room with heavy steps, and
mounting their horses, galloped away from
the castle.
There are moments in the life of ag-
ony, when it seems as if human nature must
sink and expire under the frightful ordeal.
Such moments had come to Gertrude Von
Der Warts, as stunned by the horrid deed,
she stood, speechless, by the pale little
victim of woman's revenge.
All that night, sad and silent, she sat
beside her dying babe, and when morning
broke over the earth, low wails went up
from the room where mourned the childless
woman.
To reach her husband was now the one
wish of Gertrude. The tie that bound her
to the secluded castle was broken—her
child was dead. But she was a prisoner in
her house; for a guard had been placed a-
round the castle to prevent the escape of her
husband and brother, in case they should
be secreted there.
Enduring the vigilance of the soldiers,
however, she escaped. The news of her
husband's arrest and imprisonment had
reached her, and, urged on by the most
devoted love, she made her way to the royal
chateau. Thence, herself, in an agony
of grief, at the feet of the widowed Empress
Elizabeth and her daughter Agnes, she ex-
claimed:
"Spare him! Oh, spare my husband! He
is innocent of the crime of which he is accused! My only child has been slaughtered
by your soldiers; let one victim suffice;
spare me—oh, spare my husband!"
The frantic prayer fell on stony hearts.
Silent and stern sat the Queen and her
daughter. There was no pity in their
breasts—no tenderness in their words.
Reputed and driven from the royal resi-
dence, Gertrude hovered around the pri-
son that contained her husband. As death
drew near, love grew stronger, and supported her fainting spirit in the dark valley
of the shadow of death through which it was
passing.
"N-now w-will you m-marry me?"
"No!"
"Well, I don't care, a straw whether
you'll marry me or not. You won't get
me into that canal again!"
Nor did he again essay his fortune in the
uncertain deep. Shivering and chattering
with his teeth, he quietly departed, and returning to his home a sadder, and, let us
hope, a wiser man.
A married man at Ottumwa felt un-
happy and lonely himself. His wife and
sisters cut him down. Then he tried to
butt his brains out against the wall. The
woman interfered, and told him that the
City Marshal came. That functionary
cleared out the meddlers, and told the
frantic youth to wait as long as he wanted to. He waited three times and
quit.
Jinks had been indulging too freely in
ardent spirits. At a street corner his hat
dropped into a gully. Said Jinks: "I know—if I pick it up I'll fall—if I fall
you won't pick me up—good night!"
And he walked off with a smile of
satisfaction, remembering innumerable zig-
zags as he went, leaving his hat in the gut-
ter.
A boarding establishment.—A chicken
stealer.

WOMAN'S LOVE.
As Gertrude Von Der Warts sat
singing the cradle hymn which had lulled her
baby asleep, she heard the tramp of
the court-way of the castle.
Suddenly the door was opened, and
men rushed rudely into the apartment,
where she sat guarding her infant.
"Where have you hid them?" asked
the chief of the band of soldiers, in menacing
tones, as he rudely clutched the infant.
Her woman's instinct at once dis-
tinguished that these she loved were in danger, and
she answered, in trembling tones:
"Indeed, sir, I know not. I have not
seen them."
"Wife and sister of the murderer, tell
the truth!" he replied savagely. "Our
queen—Agnes of Hungary, the daughter
of our murdered Emperor Albert—has sent
us, with the sword of vengeance, to hunt
to the ends of the earth, for the men who have taken her father's life. On them and
their children shall fall the punishment."
"Merciful Heaven!" gasped out Gertrude,
as the dreadful news broke upon her, "has
the Emperor been killed? Oh, sir! my husband and my brother had no hand in
the cruel deed!"
"Pate not with the woman," said one of
the soldiers. "Do our Queen's bidding.
There is the child."
In an instant, the mother, wild with ter-
ror, flew to the sleeping babe. It awoke,
and stretched out its arms to her. She at-
tempted to take it, but a sword gleamed
between her and the infant.
"No! no!" she screamed, in thrilling
tones of agony and fear, "take not my child
from me! Kill me, if you will, but do
not by the love you bear your own little one,
spare my innocent babe! Kill me, but
spare my child!"
Intent on their bloody purpose, the soldiers heeded not the cries of agony, which
went up from the mother's heart, as plun-
ging their swords into the child, they trampled
out of the room with heavy steps, and
mounting their horses, galloped away from
the castle.
There are moments in the life of ag-
ony, when it seems as if human nature must
sink and expire under the frightful ordeal.
Such moments had come to Gertrude Von
Der Warts, as stunned by the horrid deed,
she stood, speechless, by the pale little
victim of woman's revenge.
All that night, sad and silent, she sat
beside her dying babe, and when morning
broke over the earth, low wails went up
from the room where mourned the childless
woman.
To reach her husband was now the one
wish of Gertrude. The tie that bound her
to the secluded castle was broken—her
child was dead. But she was a prisoner in
her house; for a guard had been placed a-
round the castle to prevent the escape of her
husband and brother, in case they should
be secreted there.
Enduring the vigilance of the soldiers,
however, she escaped. The news of her
husband's arrest and imprisonment had
reached her, and, urged on by the most
devoted love, she made her way to the royal
chateau. Thence, herself, in an agony
of grief, at the feet of the widowed Empress
Elizabeth and her daughter Agnes, she ex-
claimed:
"Spare him! Oh, spare my husband! He
is innocent of the crime of which he is accused! My only child has been slaughtered
by your soldiers; let one victim suffice;
spare me—oh, spare my husband!"
The frantic prayer fell on stony hearts.
Silent and stern sat the Queen and her
daughter. There was no pity in their
breasts—no tenderness in their words.
Reputed and driven from the royal resi-
dence, Gertrude hovered around the pri-
son that contained her husband. As death
drew near, love grew stronger, and supported her fainting spirit in the dark valley
of the shadow of death through which it was
passing.
"N-now w-will you m-marry me?"
"No!"
"Well, I don't care, a straw whether
you'll marry me or not. You won't get
me into that canal again!"
Nor did he again essay his fortune in the
uncertain deep. Shivering and chattering
with his teeth, he quietly departed, and returning to his home a sadder, and, let us
hope, a wiser man.
A married man at Ottumwa felt un-
happy and lonely himself. His wife and
sisters cut him down. Then he tried to
butt his brains out against the wall. The
woman interfered, and told him that the
City Marshal came. That functionary
cleared out the meddlers, and told the
frantic youth to wait as long as he wanted to. He waited three times and
quit.
Jinks had been indulging too freely in
ardent spirits. At a street corner his hat
dropped into a gully. Said Jinks: "I know—if I pick it up I'll fall—if I fall
you won't pick me up—good night!"
And he walked off with a smile of
satisfaction, remembering innumerable zig-
zags as he went, leaving his hat in the gut-
ter.
A boarding establishment.—A chicken
stealer.

WOMAN'S LOVE.
As Gertrude Von Der Warts sat
singing the cradle hymn which had lulled her
baby asleep, she heard the tramp of
the court-way of the castle.
Suddenly the door was opened, and
men rushed rudely into the apartment,
where she sat guarding her infant.
"Where have you hid them?" asked
the chief of the band of soldiers, in menacing
tones, as he rudely clutched the infant.
Her woman's instinct at once dis-
tinguished that these she loved were in danger, and
she answered, in trembling tones:
"Indeed, sir, I know not. I have not
seen them."
"Wife and sister of the murderer, tell
the truth!" he replied savagely. "Our
queen—Agnes of Hungary, the daughter
of our murdered Emperor Albert—has sent
us, with the sword of vengeance, to hunt
to the ends of the earth, for the men who have taken her father's life. On them and
their children shall fall the punishment."
"Merciful Heaven!" gasped out Gertrude,
as the dreadful news broke upon her, "has
the Emperor been killed? Oh, sir! my husband and my brother had no hand in
the cruel deed!"
"Pate not with the woman," said one of
the soldiers. "Do our Queen's bidding.
There is the child."
In an instant, the mother, wild with ter-
ror, flew to the sleeping babe. It awoke,
and stretched out its arms to her. She at-
tempted to take it, but a sword gleamed
between her and the infant.
"No! no!" she screamed, in thrilling
tones of agony and fear, "take not my child
from me! Kill me, if you will, but do
not by the love you bear your own little one,
spare my innocent babe! Kill me, but
spare my child!"
Intent on their bloody purpose, the soldiers heeded not the cries of agony, which
went up from the mother's heart, as plun-
ging their swords into the child, they trampled
out of the room with heavy steps, and
mounting their horses, galloped away from
the castle.
There are moments in the life of ag-
ony, when it seems as if human nature must
sink and expire under the frightful ordeal.
Such moments had come to Gertrude Von
Der Warts, as stunned by the horrid deed,
she stood, speechless, by the pale little
victim of woman's revenge.
All that night, sad and silent, she sat
beside her dying babe, and when morning
broke over the earth, low wails went up
from the room where mourned the childless
woman.
To reach her husband was now the one
wish of Gertrude. The tie that bound her
to the secluded castle was broken—her
child was dead. But she was a prisoner in
her house; for a guard had been placed a-
round the castle to prevent the escape of her
husband and brother, in case they should
be secreted there.
Enduring the vigilance of the soldiers,
however, she escaped. The news of her
husband's arrest and imprisonment had
reached her, and, urged on by the most
devoted love, she made her way to the royal
chateau. Thence, herself, in an agony
of grief, at the feet of the widowed Empress
Elizabeth and her daughter Agnes, she ex-
claimed:
"Spare him! Oh, spare my husband! He
is innocent of the crime of which he is accused! My only child has been slaughtered
by your soldiers; let one victim suffice;
spare me—oh, spare my husband!"
The frantic prayer fell on stony hearts.
Silent and stern sat the Queen and her
daughter. There was no pity in their
breasts—no tenderness in their words.
Reputed and driven from the royal resi-
dence, Gertrude hovered around the pri-
son that contained her husband. As death
drew near, love grew stronger, and supported her fainting spirit in the dark valley
of the shadow of death through which it was
passing.
"N-now w-will you m-marry me?"
"No!"
"Well, I don't care, a straw whether
you'll marry me or not. You won't get
me into that canal again!"
Nor did he again essay his fortune in the
uncertain deep. Shivering and chattering
with his teeth, he quietly departed, and returning to his home a sadder, and, let us
hope, a wiser man.
A married man at Ottumwa felt un-
happy and lonely himself. His wife and
sisters cut him down. Then he tried to
butt his brains out against the wall. The
woman interfered, and told him that the
City Marshal came. That functionary
cleared out the meddlers, and told the
frantic youth to wait as long as he wanted to. He waited three times and
quit.
Jinks had been indulging too freely in
ardent spirits. At a street corner his hat
dropped into a gully. Said Jinks: "I know—if I pick it up I'll fall—if I fall
you won't pick me up—good night!"
And he walked off with a smile of
satisfaction, remembering innumerable zig-
zags as he went, leaving his hat in the gut-
ter.
A boarding establishment.—A chicken
stealer.

WOMAN'S LOVE.
As Gertrude Von Der Warts sat
singing the cradle hymn which had lulled her
baby asleep, she heard the tramp of
the court-way of the castle.
Suddenly the door was opened, and
men rushed rudely into the apartment,
where she sat guarding her infant.
"Where have you hid them?" asked
the chief of the band of soldiers, in menacing
tones, as he rudely clutched the infant.
Her woman's instinct at once dis-
tinguished that these she loved were in danger, and
she answered, in trembling tones:
"Indeed, sir, I know not. I have not
seen them."
"Wife and sister of the murderer, tell
the truth!" he replied savagely. "Our
queen—Agnes of Hungary, the daughter
of our murdered Emperor Albert—has sent
us, with the sword of vengeance, to hunt
to the ends of the earth, for the men who have taken her father's life. On them and
their children shall fall the punishment."
"Merciful Heaven!" gasped out Gertrude,
as the dreadful news broke upon her, "has
the Emperor been killed? Oh, sir! my husband and my brother had no hand in
the cruel deed!"
"Pate not with the woman," said one of
the soldiers. "Do our Queen's bidding.
There is the child."
In an instant, the mother, wild with ter-
ror, flew to the sleeping babe. It awoke,
and stretched out its arms to her. She at-
tempted to take it, but a sword gleamed
between her and the infant.
"No! no!" she screamed, in thrilling
tones of agony and fear, "take not my child
from me! Kill me, if you will, but do
not by the love you bear your own little one,
spare my innocent babe! Kill me, but
spare my child!"
Intent on their bloody purpose, the soldiers heeded not the cries of agony, which
went up from the mother's heart, as plun-
ging their swords into the child, they trampled
out of the room with heavy steps, and
mounting their horses, galloped away from
the castle.
There are moments in the life of ag-
ony, when it seems as if human nature must
sink and expire under the frightful ordeal.
Such moments had come to Gertrude Von
Der Warts, as stunned by the horrid deed,
she stood, speechless, by the pale little
victim of woman's revenge.
All that night, sad and silent, she sat
beside her dying babe, and when morning
broke over the earth, low wails went up
from the room where mourned the childless
woman.
To reach her husband was now the one
wish of Gertrude. The tie that bound her
to the secluded castle was broken—her
child was dead. But she was a prisoner in
her house; for a guard had been placed a-
round the castle to prevent the escape of her
husband and brother, in case they should
be secreted there.
Enduring the vigilance of the soldiers,
however, she escaped. The news of her
husband's arrest and imprisonment had
reached her, and, urged on by the most
devoted love, she made her way to the royal
chateau. Thence, herself, in an agony
of grief, at the feet of the widowed Empress
Elizabeth and her daughter Agnes, she ex-
claimed:
"Spare him! Oh, spare my husband! He
is innocent of the crime of which he is accused! My only child has been slaughtered
by your soldiers; let one victim suffice;
spare me—oh, spare my husband!"
The frantic prayer fell on stony hearts.
Silent and stern sat the Queen and her
daughter. There was no pity in their
breasts—no tenderness in their words.
Reputed and driven from the royal resi-
dence, Gertrude hovered around the pri-
son that contained her husband. As death
drew near, love grew stronger, and supported her fainting spirit in the dark valley
of the shadow of death through which it was
passing.
"N-now w-will you m-marry me?"
"No!"
"Well, I don't care, a straw whether
you'll marry me or not. You won't get
me into that canal again!"
Nor did he again essay his fortune in the
uncertain deep. Shivering and chattering
with his teeth, he quietly departed, and returning to his home a sadder, and, let us
hope, a wiser man.
A married man at Ottumwa felt un-
happy and lonely himself. His wife and
sisters cut him down. Then he tried to
butt his brains out against the wall. The
woman interfered, and told him that the
City Marshal came. That functionary
cleared out the meddlers, and told the
frantic youth to wait as long as he wanted to. He waited three times and
quit.
Jinks had been indulging too freely in
ardent spirits. At a street corner his hat
dropped into a gully. Said Jinks: "I know—if I pick it up I'll fall—if I fall
you won't pick me up—good night!"
And he walked off with a smile of
satisfaction, remembering innumerable zig-
zags as he went, leaving his hat in the gut-
ter.
A boarding establishment.—A chicken
stealer.

WOMAN'S LOVE.
As Gertrude Von Der Warts sat
singing the cradle hymn which had lulled her
baby asleep, she heard the tramp of
the court-way of the castle.
Suddenly the door was opened, and
men rushed rudely into the apartment,
where she sat guarding her infant.
"Where have you hid them?" asked
the chief of the band of soldiers, in menacing
tones, as he rudely clutched the infant.
Her woman's instinct at once dis-
tinguished that these she loved were in danger, and
she answered, in trembling tones:
"Indeed, sir, I know not. I have not
seen them."
"Wife and sister of the murderer, tell
the truth!" he replied savagely. "Our
queen—Agnes of Hungary, the daughter
of our murdered Emperor Albert—has sent
us, with the sword of vengeance, to hunt
to the ends of the earth, for the men who have taken her father's life. On them and
their children shall fall the punishment."
"Merciful Heaven!" gasped out Gertrude,
as the dreadful news broke upon her, "has
the Emperor been killed? Oh, sir! my husband and my brother had no hand in
the cruel deed!"
"Pate not with the woman," said one of
the soldiers. "Do our Queen's bidding.
There is the child."
In an instant, the mother, wild with ter-
ror, flew to the sleeping babe. It awoke,
and stretched out its arms to her. She at-
tempted to take it, but a sword gleamed
between her and the infant.
"No! no!" she screamed, in thrilling
tones of agony and fear, "take not my child
from me! Kill me, if you will, but do
not by the love you bear your own little one,
spare my innocent babe! Kill me, but
spare my child!"
Intent on their bloody purpose, the soldiers heeded not the cries of agony, which
went up from the mother's heart, as plun-
ging their swords into the child, they trampled
out of the room with heavy steps, and
mounting their horses, galloped away from
the castle.
There are moments in the life of ag-
ony, when it seems as if human nature must
sink and expire under the frightful ordeal.
Such moments had come to Gertrude Von
Der Warts, as stunned by the horrid deed,
she stood, speechless, by the pale little
victim of woman's revenge.
All that night, sad and silent, she sat
beside her dying babe, and when morning
broke over the earth, low wails went up
from the room where mourned the childless
woman.
To reach her husband was now the one
wish of Gertrude. The tie that bound her
to the secluded castle was broken—her
child was dead. But she was a prisoner in
her house; for a guard had been placed a-
round the castle to prevent the escape of her
husband and brother, in case they should
be secreted there.
Enduring the vigilance of the soldiers,
however, she escaped. The news of her
husband's arrest and imprisonment had
reached her, and, urged on by the most
devoted love, she made her way to the royal
chateau. Thence, herself, in an agony
of grief, at the feet of the widowed Empress
Elizabeth and her daughter Agnes, she ex-
claimed:
"Spare him! Oh, spare my husband! He
is innocent of the crime of which he is accused! My only child has been slaughtered
by your soldiers; let one victim suffice;
spare me—oh, spare my husband!"
The frantic prayer fell on stony hearts.
Silent and stern sat the Queen and her
daughter. There was no pity in their
breasts—no tenderness in their words.
Reputed and driven from the royal resi-
dence, Gertrude hovered around the pri-
son that contained her husband. As death
drew near, love grew stronger, and supported her fainting spirit in the dark valley
of the shadow of death through which it was
passing.
"N-now w-will you m-marry me?"
"No!"
"Well, I don't care, a straw whether
you'll marry me or not. You won't get
me into that canal again!"
Nor did he again essay his fortune in the
uncertain deep. Shivering and chattering
with his teeth, he quietly departed, and returning to his home a sadder, and, let us
hope, a wiser man.
A married man at Ottumwa felt un-
happy and lonely himself. His wife and
sisters cut him down. Then he tried to
butt his brains out against the wall. The
woman interfered, and told him that the
City Marshal came. That functionary
cleared out the meddlers, and told the
frantic youth to wait as long as he wanted to. He waited three times and
quit.
Jinks had been indulging too freely in
ardent spirits. At a street corner his hat
dropped into a gully. Said Jinks: "I know—if I pick it up I'll fall—if I fall
you won't pick me up—good night!"
And he walked off with a smile of
satisfaction, remembering innumerable zig-
zags as he went, leaving his hat in the gut-
ter.
A boarding establishment.—A chicken
stealer.

WOMAN'S LOVE.
As Gertrude Von Der Warts sat
singing the cradle hymn which had lulled her
baby asleep, she heard the tramp of
the court-way of the castle.
Suddenly the door was opened, and
men rushed rudely into the apartment,
where she sat guarding her infant.
"Where have you hid them?" asked
the chief of the band of soldiers, in menacing
tones, as he rudely clutched the infant.
Her woman's instinct at once dis-
tinguished that these she loved were in danger, and
she answered, in trembling tones:
"Indeed, sir, I know not. I have not
seen them."
"Wife and sister of the murderer, tell
the truth!" he replied savagely. "Our
queen—Agnes of Hungary, the daughter
of our murdered Emperor Albert—has sent
us, with the sword of vengeance, to hunt
to the ends of the earth, for the men who
have taken her father's life. On them and
their children shall fall the punishment."
"Merciful Heaven!" gasped out Gertrude,
as the dreadful news broke upon her, "has
the Emperor been killed? Oh, sir! my husband and my brother had no hand in
the cruel deed!"
"Pate not with the woman," said one of

THE ELECTION.

The article from the Wilmington Star, which we copy embraces all that may be said on the subject, and we defer any remarks of our own. We will only add what we said last week, that the people will turn out in their strength, and not permit their apathy to keep them from the polls. The people are the rulers, and they must use their power.

The first great State election held in North Carolina will be on the first Thursday in August. On that day members of Congress, State Legislators, two Justices of the Supreme Court, Superior Court Judges for the 1st, 3rd, 4th, 5th, 7th and 9th districts, County Commissioners, Sheriffs, Superior Court Clerks, Treasurers, Registers, Surveyors and Coroners will be chosen.

An important feature in the election law under consideration in the Legislature is the right to make the voter prove residence in the township where he proposes to cast his vote. This will prevent much illegal voting, and of course is not liked by the Republicans.

We hope that the Conservatives of North Carolina are prepared to enter the canvass at the proper time with the spirit to make success sure. The next Legislature ought to have a larger Conservative majority than the present one has. The Fourth Congressional District of right belongs to our party, and should be won back at this election. Some of the Judicial Districts now in the possession of the Radicals should be carried by our friends. There are county governments now in the hands of Republicans, which might by a little extra effort be wrested from them.

Looking over the whole State we see opportunities for the great Conservative party such as it has not had since its grand success in 1870. Shall we be idle and apathetic, or shall we get to work in good time and with an earnest purpose and unconquerable will? The State is largely Conservative. Let us develop our full strength at the next election, not only maintaining party rule but ridding up our majorities so as to humiliate our enemy as he is humiliated in Georgia and Virginia. This Journal will not be satisfied until this is done. The result of the next contest will depend mainly on the spirit of the canvass, and that will depend to a great extent on the appointments for the occasion—the work of organization, the quality of the candidates, the combined prudence and boldness of those who lead in the strife. Let the party not look in any of these essentials to a forcible, triumphant campaign.

MEETING OF TRUSTEES.

The Trustees of the University met in Raleigh on the 18th. The revival of the institution is now a matter of hopeful prospect. Elsewhere will be found the correspondence with his Excellency, the Governor, refusing to co-operate with the board. It is a display of the same petty spite, and bull headed opposition to every scheme which does not originate with himself or his party.

N. C. GRANGERS.

The State Grange—Dr. Columbus Mills, Master—not in Raleigh on the 18th. One hundred and thirty-four granges are represented out of two hundred and thirty-five in the State.

Greetings were received and returned from the State Granges of South Carolina and Ohio.

Dr. Mills was re-elected Worthy Master, and Richard Williams, of Pitt county, was elected Worthy Overseer.

There were about three hundred grangers present.

The Order is represented as rapidly increasing. There are already 7,000 members in the State.

THE SIAMSE TWINS.

The latest dispatch from Philadelphia says: The dissection of the twins connecting the twins—the most important point at issue—having been concluded, the only point of interest remaining is the construction and relation of the hearts of the brothers, and although no regular examination has yet been made it has been fully decided upon by medical men that the same abnormal relation existed as in the case of the liver; that is, that the apices of the heart approached each other, the heart of one of them being nominally situated in the left side, and that of the other in the right side, but both were perfect organs as regards circulation. The examination in this particular will be made from day to day, but a full report of the facts in relation thereto will not be ready for some time.

Rev. Dr. R. S. Mason, of Raleigh, for thirty-five years past pastor of Christ Episcopal Church in Raleigh, is dead.

MRS. TOD.

We give below (says the Raleigh News,) two letters emanating from Mrs. H. Caldwell, by the grace of Radical votes, Governor of the State of North Carolina. They relate to the matter of the appointment of Trustees of the University. The first was written in reference to an official communication from the Senate informing him that that body would go into Executive session on the afternoon of the 14th of February last, for the purpose of considering such further nominations as he might desire to make. The Senate had previously considered all the nominations made by the Governor for the various charitable and penal institutions of the State. Our readers will see that in this letter the Governor distinctly states that he knows of no office to be filled originally and no vacancy to be supplied which required any nomination to be submitted by him, and yet up to that time no nomination for Trustees of the University had been made or considered.

The second letter is in response to a resolution, passed by the Trustees of the University, inviting him as Governor and ex-officio President of the Board of Trustees to preside over their deliberations. In that letter he says: "I am of the opinion that the Legislature had no right, under the Constitution, to elect Trustees for the University, but that it is an Executive function to nominate Trustees and submit his nominations to the Senate for confirmation."

We make no comments, but let the letters speak for themselves:

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT.
Raleigh, N. C., Feb. 14, 1874.

Hon. C. H. Brogden, President of the Senate.

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your communication of yesterday, informing me that the honorable body over which you preside will sit in Executive session this afternoon at 8 o'clock for the purpose of considering such further nominations as I, as Governor, may desire to make.

In reply I have to say that I know of no office to be filled originally and no vacancy to be supplied which requires any nomination to be submitted by me to an Executive session of the Senate.

I have the honor to be,
Very respectfully your Obedient servant,
TOD R. CALDWELL, Gov.

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT.
State of North Carolina.
Raleigh, 18th Feb. '74.

To Hon. W. A. Graham and others.

GENTLEMEN: I am in receipt of a resolution passed by a body purporting to be Trustees of the University of North Carolina, inviting me, as Governor and ex-officio President of the Board of Trustees, to preside over the body now in session.

It would, I assure you, afford me pleasure to comply with your wishes and accept your invitation, were it not that I entertain a decided opinion that your body have not been constitutionally elected to the offices you claim to hold and exercise. I am of opinion that the Legislature had no right, under the Constitution, to elect Trustees for the University, but that it is an Executive function to nominate Trustees and submit his nominations to the Senate for confirmation. Entertaining these views, and with great respect to you collectively and individually, I feel it my duty to decline your invitation and refuse to take any part in your deliberations.

I have the honor to be,
Very respectfully,
Your ob't serv't,
TOD R. CALDWELL.

McCARTY PARDONED.

The Governor of Virginia, has pardoned McCarty on the ground that his life would be greatly imperiled by further imprisonment. He enjoined upon the application the following words:

"Pardon is granted in this case solely because it is necessary to save life. The reasons upon which clemency is invoked in the numerous signed petitions filed in the case are wholly disapproved, and it must not be doubted that the penalties of the anti-slavery act will be inflexibly enforced so far as their enforcement is devolved upon this office."

The State Grange of Missouri, has adopted resolutions endorsing the declaration of principles of the National Grange—pronouncing against moneyed monopolies and rings; demanding retrenchment in the State and economy in the family; inviting the co-operation of the sisters of the Order; declaring that to the producing class—a majority of the people—belongs the power assumed by the smaller and unscrupulous class for selfish purposes; disclaiming political purposes, and calling on Congress to economic, reformed and purify the administration of the government.

KILLING OF STEVE LOWRY.

The last of the Lowry Gang was killed in the upper part of Robeson county a few days ago, by two men, Sutton and Holcomb. Lowry was tuning a bath to play for some vagabonds when he was fired upon. Three shots were fired, all of which took effect in his head, causing instant death.

The rewards offered for his capture or killing amount to $5,000 which will make the deed a profitable one to the slayers.

CONGRESSIONAL ITEMS.

The Committee on postage in the House reported unanimously in favor of the transmission of public documents printed by authority of Congress, such as Shrubbery &c, and that the carriage of papers should be free in the country in which they were published.

It remains to be seen whether the action of Congress will be favorable or otherwise.

The committee of Ways and Means heard arguments in favor of reduction of taxes on leaf tobacco and fruit brandies. Congressman Lettrall, of California, and several Virginia members addressed the committee.

White from the Judiciary Committee, reported bill for the appointment of U. S. Marshal in the Western District of North Carolina.

The most plausible statement regarding a new election in Louisiana is as follows: The Democrats, failing to inaugurate the McKinley government by a direct vote in the Senate, will vote to commit the matter to the committee on privileges and elections, with instructions to report at an early day. It is understood that all the Democratic Senators, except Messrs. Sanitary and Bayard, will support the new election, and these two have not made positive announcement.

Mr. Carpenter claims that every Republican who supported the bill last year, except two, will support it now. He failed then by only two votes with all the Democrats voting against him.

Mr. Butler is quoted as saying: "If it comes the Senate it is certain to pass the House."

Friends of the present government in Louisiana, to whom the above was submitted, report that the prospects of a new election are highly overrated.

The Herald publishes additional evidence, and urges as a matter of common justice to Judge Durell that his course should be brought to question before the Senate. Its comments are quite bitter. The alleged bankruptcy swindles enter largely into the question as argued by the Herald; but, as Marshal Packard says, "they can't impeach Norton."

Two hundred bankers and business men of Chicago petition against an increase of currency.

Mr. Logan said he had heard of this petition before. He knew many of those who had signed it, and among them were men who were the first to close their doors last fall and refused to pay their depositors, or pay them with any kind of paper. He would hereafter present petitions showing the prevailing sentiment in his country.

Mr. Cameron's amendment repealing all laws which restricted national bank circulation was defeated by a vote of 26 to 32.

Mr. Gordon submitted a substitute instructing the committee to report as soon as practicable a bill for free banking, and providing for the convertibility of United States Treasury notes into low interest bonds or gold coin at the option of the government, and the bonds convertible into Treasury notes at the option of the holder. Rejected—yeas, 26; nays 30.

Senator Cameron's free banking bill having been voted down in the Senate, the contest is now narrowed down to Sherman's resumption and Merrimon's amendment, of expansion of currency, so ably advocated by Logan, Morton and others. The whole question will probably be disposed of this week. The vote to-day is considered favorable to Sherman's scheme for the removal of twenty-five millions of currency from the East to the West and South; or, if not this, a recommitment of the whole subject to the finance committee, which would delay final action on it for several weeks.

Several Virginians advocated a reduction of the tax on leaf tobacco before the Ways and Means committee.

The House committee on the judiciary will report against a recognition of the claims of insurance companies in the distribution of the Greenback award.

Chief Justice Waite was on the floor of the Senate to-day, and was introduced to nearly all the Senators. He takes the oath of office on the re-assembling of the Supreme Court, on the 3rd of March.

MARKETS.

TOBACCO.—The activity noticed last week continues, with good prices, but small changes to be made in quotations. The demand for old tobacco is brisk. From the fear that there will be a deficiency of good qualities in the last year's crop to meet the wants of the trade.

Our own market is brisk, and tobacco is wanted. It will bring good prices. Webb's Warehouse is in full business.

We quote:

DANVILLE Feb. 21.
Leaf, common to good, 34 to 41
Leaf " " " 4 to 7
Black wrappers, 9 to 12
Bright Manufacturing and Smoking.
Leaf, common to medium, 5 to 7

good to fine, 7 to 9
extra smoking, 10 to 15
leaf, common to medium, 12 to 15
good to fine, 13 to 20
extra fine, 40 to 75
old wrappers, 30 to 80
old fillers sweet and good, 10 to 15
old common fillers, 7 to 9

Receipts light for the season, market animated and good wrappers bringing high prices. Old stock looked after and loading.

DURHAM, Feb. 21.

Durham, Tobacco—market fully open prices of old range high.

Red Legs, 6 to 10
New Legs, common, 8 to 4
" " good, 4 to 6
Old, bright smokers, 10 to 25
New crops low, compared with desirable grades.

Leaf wrappers, 10 to 20
Medium, 15 to 25
Fine, 25 to 40
Extra, 40 to 60
Wrappers and old stock very much sought after.

COTTON, dull and unchanged, and quotations unsatisfactory. Raleigh, 23rd, Middling 13 1/2.

RALEIGH NATIONAL BANK

OF

NORTH CAROLINA.

paid in Capital $500,000.

Designated Depository of the United States and Financial Agent.

W. H. WILLARD, President.

C. DEWEY, Cashier.

Make collections in any part of the country at low rates.

C. Dewey, W. H. Willard, A. S. Morrison, R. S. Tucker, W. J. Hawkins, A. G. Lee, W. G. Upchurch.

Nov. 25th 1873 ly.

HERE I AM
Boot and Shoe Making.

I HEREBY inform my numerous constituency of persons and friends that I am now ready and anxious to serve them.

AT MY OLD WELL KNOWN STAND, formerly occupied by PARKS & FAUCETT, in addition to the manufacture of BOOTS AND SHOES, I will also keep on hand a full supply of LEATHER, and SHOE FINDINGS of all descriptions.

BARTER.
PRODUCE of all descriptions taken in exchange for work. Greenbacks not rejected. Jan 23rd.

JAMES PARKS.

GO TO TEXAS

VIA THE

Lone Star Route.

(International and Great Northern R. R.)

PASSENGERS going to Texas via Memphis and Little Rock, or via New Orleans, strike this line at Longview; the Lone Star Route to Dallas, Houston, Waco, Austin, Huntsville, Houston, Galveston and all points in Western, Central, Eastern and Southern Texas.

Passengers via New Orleans will find it the best route to Tyler, Minnola, Dallas, Houston, Crockett, Longview, and all points in Eastern and Southern Texas.

This line is well built, thoroughly equipped with every modern improvement, including New and Elegant Day Coaches, Pullman Palace Sleeping Cars, Washington Air Brakes, Miller's Patent Safety Platforms and complete and modern electric power, and completely depend on a speedy and comfortable journey.

The LONE STAR Route has admirably equipped the journey. "How to go to Texas" by the publication of an interesting and truthful document, containing a valuable and correct map, which can be obtained, free of charge, by addressing the GENERAL TICKET AGENT, International and Great Northern Railroad, Houston, Texas.

District E.] Feb. 11y.

Dr. D. A. Robertson.

Surgeon Dentist.

Office over C. M. Parks' store.

Dr. D. A. Robertson, Surgeon Dentist, will call on the 11th day of every month.

Dr. D. A. Robertson, Surgeon Dentist, will call on the 11th day of every month.

Dr. D. A. Robertson, Surgeon Dentist, will call on the 11th day of every month.

Dr. D. A. Robertson, Surgeon Dentist, will call on the 11th day of every month.

Dr. D. A. Robertson, Surgeon Dentist, will call on the 11th day of every month.

Dr. D. A. Robertson, Surgeon Dentist, will call on the 11th day of every month.

Dr. D. A. Robertson, Surgeon Dentist, will call on the 11th day of every month.

Dr. D. A. Robertson, Surgeon Dentist, will call on the 11th day of every month.

Dr. D. A. Robertson, Surgeon Dentist, will call on the 11th day of every month.

Dr. D. A. Robertson, Surgeon Dentist, will call on the 11th day of every month.

Dr. D. A. Robertson, Surgeon Dentist, will call on the 11th day of every month.

Dr. D. A. Robertson, Surgeon Dentist, will call on the 11th day of every month.

Dr. D. A. Robertson, Surgeon Dentist, will call on the 11th day of every month.

Dr. D. A. Robertson, Surgeon Dentist, will call on the 11th day of every month.

Dr. D. A. Robertson, Surgeon Dentist, will call on the 11th day of every month.

Dr. D. A. Robertson, Surgeon Dentist, will call on the 11th day of every month.

Dr. D. A. Robertson, Surgeon Dentist, will call on the 11th day of every month.

Dr. D. A. Robertson, Surgeon Dentist, will call on the 11th day of every month.

Dr. D. A. Robertson, Surgeon Dentist, will call on the 11th day of every month.

STAR Warehouse, Danville, Va.

THIS is the most magnificent building of the kind in the State.

THE ONLY

BRICK WAREHOUSE

In Danville. Fire Proof, Slate Roof, with 30 solid Sky-Lights.

Sales Room 105 by 160 feet, with Stables under the same roof for 120 Horses.

Spring Water running through the Lot and Stables.

Prompt business transactions, and quick returns of SALES with the highest market Prices guaranteed.

W. J. FOWLKES, Active Partner.

RO. G. PACE, Special Partner.

C. D. HANCOCK, Late of Lynchburg, Auctioneer.

Refer to Planters National Bank, Danville.

W. J. Patton Sons & Co.

or to any Tobaccoist or Merchant of Danville.

Feb. 18th '74 Geo.

DON'T FORGET,

THAT

Pace's Warehouse,

Can and does show, the LARGEST Sales, and HIGHEST

Average prices of any Warehouse in Danville. Puny efforts are being made by some other houses claiming Head-Quarters of fine Tobacco, and yet all reflecting Planters see that the figures are decidedly in favor of PACE'S.

We claim that under James H. Pierce's management the Tobacco on our floor is better handled than elsewhere. Notice this when you visit Danville.

Business promptly and accurately transacted.

Call and get one of Pace's Almanacs or send your address.

Yours truly, PACE BROS. & CO.

Feb. 18 '74 Geo.

ED. M. PACE, RO. G. PACE, J. MAC. SMITH.

Williamson Upchurch & Thomas

Wholesale Grocers Cotton Factors

AND

Commission Merchants,

53 Fayetteville Street,

Raleigh, N. C.

We sell Cotton for Fifty cents per Bale.

KEEP constantly on hand a large stock of Bagging and Twine.

Refer to J. W. Cheek, Durham.

W. F. Stroud, Chapel Hill.

John Armstrong.

No. 1 Fayetteville Street,

Raleigh, N. C.

BOOK BINDER

AND

Blank Book Manufacturer.

NEW-PAPEL, Manuscripts and Law Books

of every description bound in the very best style and at Lowest Prices.

Jan 5 ly.

SKLE T.

Boarding and Day School.

HILLSBORO, N. C.

THE Misses Nann and Miss Kossman, will resume the charges of their school on Friday

February 6, 1874.

Circulars forwarded on application. Jan 27 3m

Steam Engines and Boilers.

SAW MILLS.

WOOD WORKING MACHINERY.

Grist Mill Machinery

AND

MILL FURNISHING GOODS

ALSO

Second Hand Engines and Boilers.

Send for Circular.

RAHN & HUNTER.

RICHMOND,

VA.

Dec. 3 3m.

T. J. WILSON, M. D.,

Physician and Surgeon.

OFFICE and Residence, opposite Mrs. Rutledge's. Where he can always be found except when absent Professionally.

Jan. 12 '74 Geo.

George Allen & Co.,

NEWBERN, N. C.

Cider Mills, Wood's Mowers & Re-

apers, Cotton Gins and Presses.

Thrashers, Horse Powers.

Manufacturers of

THE WILEY PLOW.

The Champion Plow and Cultivator.

The Dickson and Allen Saws.

Either of which were one half Labor of man and horse. Send for catalogue and Prices.

Dec. 31 Geo.

The Wilmington Recorder.

WEDNESDAY, FEB. 21, 1878.

LOCAL DEPARTMENT.

Terms of the Recorder: For 1 year, $2.50. For 6 months, $1.50. Clubs of six or more, each subscriber, 2.00.

Payments always in advance. Job printing done promptly and cheaply.

See first and fourth pages for advertisement rates.

HOLLAND'S IS THE PLACE FOR THE SALE OF FINE TOBACCO.

Change of Water.

On and after the 1st of March, 1878, the Recorder will be published at $2. per year, and $1.00 for six months. We do this in consideration of the scarcity of money in the country, and in being our paper within the reach of all.

THE REV. D. McFARLANE.

The Rev. D. McFarlane will lecture in the Presbyterian Church on Thursday evening at 7 o'clock on the subject, "The Publican Invited to Attend."

PLANTERS' WAREHOUSE.

By mistake in heading the advertisement of this first class establishment, the name of "Danville" was inserted instead of "Planters." We would do no injustice to those excellent friends and neighboring gentlemen by a substitution which might possibly work them an injury. We beg to call particular attention to this advertisement which appears now with its proper heading.

The South Works.

The lovers of the shaded haunts of this favorite resort will be grieved at the destruction caused by the storm. It is nearly a ruin. Some of the finest trees are torn up by the roots, and have fallen into the river. The scene presents such the appearance of the ravages of a hurricane.

The weather at present is charming. Spring makes rapid advances. Wheat and oats make a promising exhibit, and rarely have ever shown better at this season. Peach and plum trees begin to show signs of bloom, which is to be regretted, as winter can hardly be said to be over.

Danville Auctioneers.

Whoever has visited the Warehouse of Danville on sales days, must be attracted by the extraordinary efficiency of the auctioneers. A promptness and dispatch that is wonderful, a volubility that is amazing, a tact that is admirable, make a life in the business a pleasure. It is unfair to discriminate when all are excellent. Holland's has Coleman, Pace's has MacSmith, Neal's has John C. Neal, the Farmers, Finch. We do not remember the others, but all these are so remarkable that they merit distinguished notice.

J. M. Blair has ceased the management of the National Hotel at Raleigh, and Mr. C. M. Brown of the Boyden House at Salisbury, has taken charge of it. Both gentlemen have always kept good houses, and we presume the National will lose nothing of its high character.

A. W. Holland of Holland's Warehouse, a large manufacturer in Danville and Atlanta, requires a large stock of fine tobacco. Best prices paid.

His old friends will find Mr. Ralph D. Williams of Person County at Holland's Warehouse in the capacity of floor manager, where he will be pleased to wait on them, and show them the great facilities of his house.

Major Robert Bingham delivered his lecture on the Anglo-Saxon Race, at Columbia last week, and made the same happy impression that has attended his efforts in other places.

The Sales of Coffee.

This article has gone up higher, we are glad to say, but is high enough to make its consumption a matter of great circumspection. At 35 cents a pound for Rio, there will be many a dry or weak cup in the land, and with the prices in New York and Baltimore, as stiff as they are in first hands, there is no room to look for a relaxation for many months to come.

But we think our merchants may avail themselves of the low prices of tea, and take advantage of the present price of coffee to popularize a beverage, which is almost universal in England, Russia, Australia and other parts of the world. There is no duty now on tea. The supply from China and Japan is very large, and a large demand is wanted. The wholesale price in New York are so low, that it could come into general use, if a taste for it could be cultivated. The essential principle of tea is the same as that of coffee, consequently it would fill all the wants for a genteel stimulant.

We quote from the Grocer's circular of Feb 6th. Young Hyson, 25 to 1 1/2 per pound. Hyson 25 to 25. Imperial 25 to 1.0. Gunpowder 25 to 1.0. Twanky 25 to 40. Oolong 25 to 1.0. Japan 25 to 1.0.

If you want HIGH PRICES GAINED BY A FLEETING AUCTION, GO TO THE PLANTERS' WAREHOUSE.

Good Food and Plenty of it, produces the same effect upon a person who has been starved that the Peruvian Syrup, an Iron Tonic, does upon the weak and debilitated; it makes them strong and vigorous, changing weakness into strength and suffering into health.

WILMINGTON.

Our Wilmington Correspondence.

WILMINGTON, Feb. 21st, 1878.

Dear Recorder:—Our flourishing little city, like the great metropolis north of us, must have a new sensation every day or two, or we will stagnate. We have talked of street rail way extensions. Sound rail ways and the rail way line to the mountains until we are heartily sick and tired of them. The people begin to look around for a new sensation, and they soon found it; or rather it was brought so close to the perception of some, that it was impossible to avoid seeing it. Just now the frequent and alarming robberies that have been perpetrated in our city of late, are attracting the greatest amount of popular attention. For some time, robberies have been perpetrated most successfully in the most prominent business quarters, and but few arrests have been made. This is chargeable to a great extent. I honestly believe to the inefficiency of our police force. We have but eighteen privates in all in the force, for day and night duty, and this is not half enough to protect the business sections, to say nothing of the other sections of the city.

On Monday night the wholesale grocery establishment of Binford, Crow & Co. Fronting on South Front and South Water Streets, between Dock and Orange, was broken into and a lot of merchandise taken therefrom. It was done in the early part of the night, and yet, although there were two policemen within one hundred yards of the scene, the thieves succeeded in making off with their booty.

Two of the parties, both negroes were arrested and tried before the mayor yesterday, and were bound over by him for trial at the next term of our Superior Court. Another party, who is implicated has been traced as far as Raleigh, and will probably be arrested in a day or two.

Another most daring outrage known here this winter, took place last night. While a gentleman resident was on his way home, and when within a stone's throw of the guard house, he was approached by three men, one white and two colored. The white man showed a pistol under his nose, and the two negroes went through his pockets. They found only a plug of tobacco, and this they promptly confiscated. No arrest.

We are still talking down here about that sound rail road, but it is not at all certain that it will be built this summer. The committee are however hard at work and have met with much encouragement.

Our four weeks term of Superior Court has just closed. A number of prominent criminal cases were tried, and among the sentences are two for manslaughter, ten years each, and one for forgery five years. Deputy Sheriff Morris left this morning for Raleigh with a batch of convicts for the Penitentiary.

After a day's most disagreeable weather imaginable we now have a pretty bright day, warm enough to set by the open windows, and whistle for a cool breeze from the ocean.

Yours,
CAPT. FEAR.

HOLLAND'S IS THE PLACE FOR HIGH PRICES.

"HEAD QUARTERS" FOR ALL THE FINE TOBACCO.

HOLLAND'S WAREHOUSE DANVILLE VA.

WAREHOUSE APPRAISER.—We noticed in Holland's Warehouse the other day, a large truck of a new style, which had just been introduced there and which was invented to facilitate the unloading of tobacco. It is a good thing in its way. It is a large, broad truck on two wheels, which will easily carry from 500 to 800 pounds of leaf tobacco, and from the truck the tobacco can be slipped in bulk, thus saving the labor and time of one packing. Under the old plan, tobacco had to be handled as it was taken from the wagon and, after being weighed had to be handled again as it was taken from the box and bulked on the floor. The last named labor is saved by the use of the truck (which they facetiously call "Sweetstakes") finding this so convenient, the proprietors are going to have several more made.

We also observe that a new office has been built near the center of the house, with several new conveniences, which will help no little to dispatch business in time of a glut.—Danville Register.

Since the above was published, they have now and can unload tobacco in one fourth the time that it takes to pack on the old boxes and then pack on the floor.

ROMANCE.

In Stateville, N. C. on Feb. 18th last night, J. D. Elliott, manager of the St. Charles Hotel in that town, shot and killed Charles T. Neal, a native of Richmond, Va; and son of T. D. Neal, Esq.

The difficulty grew out of reports which Elliott had circulated about Neal during the absence of the latter. Elliott walked up behind his victim, while he was being put out of the house by the elder Elliott, and without a word placed a pistol at his side and fired the ball entering Neal's heart, and he expired almost instantly. Elliott surrendered himself.

From later information, it seems that Neal had been requested by Elliott, Sr. to settle his bill and go to the other hotel, as they did not want him there any longer. When the bill was presented the parties seemed to disagree as to the amount.

Nothing more was said about it until this morning, when Mr. Elliott proprietor of the St. Charles Hotel, stepped up to Neal while talking to Dr. Mott, and laid his hand on his shoulder, and told him he must leave his house. Neal's reply was,

"I reckon not," at which Joseph Elliott, son of the proprietor, drew a pistol and fired, without speaking a word. The shot took effect in his left side, and the heart. Neal remarked that it was a cowardly act, and died instantly. Elliott is in jail. This is all that could be learned from the conductor on the Western road, who said he had it from an eye-witness.

The Planter's Warehouse. has the new Sweetstakes truck mentioned last week in connection with a notice of Holland's warehouse. It is a great improvement in the movement and handling of tobacco, which every one who sees it will at once admit.

Durham, N. C., Feb. 18th, 1878. Mr. Editor:—During the past week Durham has been somewhat agitated over a petition from certain parties for the removal of the town constable. The petition received a cool reception at the hands of the fathers of our town; but nevertheless was the occasion of our Mayor and Constable resigning their offices. Col. H. C. Parish is now our Mayor; but your correspondent has not yet learned that any person has been appointed to fill the office of constable. It is not likely we shall get another as good as the one who resigned, a man who will fearlessly execute the town laws irrespective of persons.

The trade in Leaf and Manufactured Tobacco continues to be good, although it has been at low ebb this week. We anticipate a heavy shower of leaf tobacco on the market next week.

We learn that certain parties here and elsewhere are discussing the subject of erecting a large cotton factory at this place, for the purpose of furnishing the manufacturers of Durham with sheeting for tobacco bags. Should it be carried into operation, it will be of no small importance to our town. It is the manufacturing interest that builds up a town.

We want a large number of immigrants with and without capital, and our town offers better inducement than any town in the State.

We have had two weddings in town this week, one a runaway, or "Gretna Green," match; two more on docket to come off very soon. Now that the ball is in motion, we hope it will not stop till at least a dozen of our young bachelors have tied the Gordian knot, and are blessed with a better half. Yours Truly, YELBY.

SHEEP KILLING.

On all sides we hear of the destruction of sheep by worthless dogs. As we came into our office this morning the ground was covered with wool, as if a snow had fallen, and we found an ex-shepherd, gun in hand, in pursuit of the depredators upon his flock. Will not the people ask to be relieved from this nuisance, and require the Legislature to pass laws taxing dogs?

Sheep and dogs want to do together. We must be sheep, wool, mutton, and comfort, or dogs, nuisance, hydrophobia and poverty. Why choose the last, when you can have the other?

Fickle nature with a winter face again this morning, and I snow threatened.

OBITUARY.

Communicated for the Recorder.

My own sister, Mrs. Louisa Adeline, wife of O. H. Watson of Orange County, N. C. is dead. Who will not weep with me while I weep over this and bereavement? How can I bear the thought that I shall see her no more. She was so kind and so loving. My sister has been the object of my tenderest regard and esteem ever since her infancy.

She was born May 24th 1831, embraced religion and joined the M. E. Church, South, in 1864; was married to O. H. Watson, Nov. 19th 1871, and after a protracted illness of twelve months, she died in Orange County N. C. Dec. 24th 1878.

While very young and in some unknown manner she had her right arm broken. Being too young to tell us where her pain was she had to suffer for several days, before my mother discovered the true nature of the case. She also received several falls, which came very near causing her death, during her infancy. But none of these afflictions at all disfigured her. Naturally beautiful, dignified, serene and gentle; she was admired by all who knew her. She died quietly and without an enemy.

At the tender age of thirteen, she gave her heart to Christ, and ever afterward abided in the glory of God. Her light was that which shone brightly and brighter unto the perfect day. She is now in heaven.

Her little boy, whom she named Edward Jameson, was born Dec. 27th 1872, and preceded her to the glory of heaven just one month and twenty-one days. Another sister who was with her during all her sickness, says she grew more continually after the death of her babe. I never saw little Eddie, but all say it was a very promising child. At his death he was at that tender age when it is so hard to let them go. At the age of ten months the little child was so precious. As death and bereavement of the death of her child hastened her death. It was truly hard for her to see her darling infant die, and then taken off to the cold grave, when she was already so sick herself.

Many other things might be well said in praise of my dear departed sister, and her untimely death, but perhaps I ought to let others, not so nearly related, not so severely stricken with sorrow, say them. "In the midst of life we are in death; of whom may we seek for succor but of thee, O Lord, who for our sins art justly displeased." But in the midst of sorrow I do rejoice to know that I have another sister in heaven. Two had gone before Louisa.

My three brothers, four sisters, and an aged widowed mother are left to mourn over her departure, together with myself, and bereaved affectionate husband.

JAMES J. CARMEN.
Wilmington, N. C., Feb. 19th, 1878.

THE MOST POPULAR MEDICINE EXTANT.

1840 Over Thirty Years 1872,

Since the introduction of
"PERRY DAVIS' PAIN-KILLER,"

THE PAIN KILLER
is rapidly becoming the most popular medicine in the world.

THE PAIN KILLER
is a safe and reliable remedy for all kinds of pain, and is the only medicine that can be taken without danger to the system.

THE PAIN KILLER
is the only medicine that can be taken without danger to the system.

THE PAIN KILLER
is the only medicine that can be taken without danger to the system.

THE PAIN KILLER
is the only medicine that can be taken without danger to the system.

THE PAIN KILLER
is the only medicine that can be taken without danger to the system.

THE PAIN KILLER
is the only medicine that can be taken without danger to the system.

THE PAIN KILLER
is the only medicine that can be taken without danger to the system.

THE PAIN KILLER
is the only medicine that can be taken without danger to the system.

THE PAIN KILLER
is the only medicine that can be taken without danger to the system.

THE PAIN KILLER
is the only medicine that can be taken without danger to the system.

THE PAIN KILLER
is the only medicine that can be taken without danger to the system.

THE PAIN KILLER
is the only medicine that can be taken without danger to the system.

THE PAIN KILLER
is the only medicine that can be taken without danger to the system.

THE PAIN KILLER
is the only medicine that can be taken without danger to the system.

THE PAIN KILLER
is the only medicine that can be taken without danger to the system.

THE PAIN KILLER
is the only medicine that can be taken without danger to the system.

THE PAIN KILLER
is the only medicine that can be taken without danger to the system.

THE PAIN KILLER
is the only medicine that can be taken without danger to the system.

THE PAIN KILLER
is the only medicine that can be taken without danger to the system.

THE PAIN KILLER
is the only medicine that can be taken without danger to the system.

THE PAIN KILLER
is the only medicine that can be taken without danger to the system.

THE PAIN KILLER
is the only medicine that can be taken without danger to the system.

THE PAIN KILLER
is the only medicine that can be taken without danger to the system.

THE PAIN KILLER
is the only medicine that can be taken without danger to the system.

THE PAIN KILLER
is the only medicine that can be taken without danger to the system.

THE PAIN KILLER
is the only medicine that can be taken without danger to the system.

THE PAIN KILLER
is the only medicine that can be taken without danger to the system.

THE PAIN KILLER
is the only medicine that can be taken without danger to the system.

THE PAIN KILLER
is the only medicine that can be taken without danger to the system.

THE PAIN KILLER
is the only medicine that can be taken without danger to the system.

THE PAIN KILLER
is the only medicine that can be taken without danger to the system.

THE PAIN KILLER
is the only medicine that can be taken without danger to the system.

THE PAIN KILLER
is the only medicine that can be taken without danger to the system.

THE PAIN KILLER
is the only medicine that can be taken without danger to the system.

THE PAIN KILLER
is the only medicine that can be taken without danger to the system.

THE PAIN KILLER
is the only medicine that can be taken without danger to the system.

THE PAIN KILLER
is the only medicine that can be taken without danger to the system.

THE PAIN KILLER
is the only medicine that can be taken without danger to the system.

THE PAIN KILLER
is the only medicine that can be taken without danger to the system.

THE PAIN KILLER
is the only medicine that can be taken without danger to the system.

THE PAIN KILLER
is the only medicine that can be taken without danger to the system.

THE PAIN KILLER
is the only medicine that can be taken without danger to the system.

THE PAIN KILLER
is the only medicine that can be taken without danger to the system.

THE PAIN KILLER
is the only medicine that can be taken without danger to the system.

THE PAIN KILLER
is the only medicine that can be taken without danger to the system.

THE PAIN KILLER
is the only medicine that can be taken without danger to the system.

GRANDES!

Cheap Goods Ruined the Country!

GREENBACKS HAVE DEPRECIATED IN VALUE OF LATE.

Causing an advance in many Goods. Have purchased a large Stock of STAPLE GOODS, which are offered at "Live and let Live Prices," your Produce brings Full Prices at

"I Will Try It"

WANTED all kinds of Country Produce, I am yet taking GREENBACKS at FARMER'S HALL, at their day value only.

HENRY N. BROWN.

Feb. 4th 1871.

THE NAVASSA GUANO COMPANY

OF

Wilmington, N. C.

HAVE ready for delivery a supply of this well known Standard Fertilizer.

SOLUBLE NAVASSA GUANO.

Price—$55 per ton Cash, or $55 on credit.

NAVASSA TOBACCO FERTILIZER.

Price—$85 per ton Cash or $75, on credit.

SOLUBLE NAVASSA ACID PHOSPHATE.

Price—$35 per ton Cash, or 40, on credit.

Prepared especially for composting with Cotton Seed.

For Sale by our agents throughout the State.

R. R. BRIDGERS, President.

C. L. GRAFFLIN, Superintendent.

D. McCauley, Agent, Chapel Hill.

E. B. Holden, Post Ridge, Jan 28th.

Send for circulars.

DONALD J. MACRAE, Treasurer.

WILMINGTON, N. C.

A. Mangum, Agent Flat River.

THE BANK OF MECKLENBURG,

CHARLOTTE, N. C.

Authorized Capital $500,000.

JAS. TURNER, President.

THOS. W. DEWEY, Cashier.

F. H. DEWEY, Asst. Cashier.

AT THE BANKING HOUSE OF

TATE & DEWEY.

THIS Bank Chartered under Act of the General Assembly, and duly organized under laws of the State of North Carolina, with ample means, to transact

GENERAL BANKING BUSINESS.

and furnish accommodations to all Customers on

LIBERAL TERMS.

The Bank will receive Deposits subject to check and will Allow Interest According to Agreement.

on all Deposits left on time, or issue Certificates of Deposit bearing interest at the rate of Eight per Cent per Annum,

on all money withdrawn over thirty days.

Gold and Silver Coins, Bullion, and old Bank Notes Bought and Sold.

THOS. W. DEWEY, Cashier.

Jan 18th, 1878.

EXCHANGE HOTEL,

HILLSBORO STREET.

One Square West of the Capitol,

RALEIGH, N. C.

Mrs. ROWE,

Proprietress.

March 18, 1878.

NOTICE

TO THE

TOBACCO PLANTERS.

I HAVE again commenced the Sale of

Leaf Tobacco

AT WEBB'S WAREHOUSE; will sell

Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Exactly at Eleven o'clock. Bring in your

Tobacco in good order, and you shall have the best MARKET PRICES for

ALL GRADES.

We have a number of LIBERAL BUY-

ERS in our Market, and the demand for manufacturing Stock has greatly increased

this Season, and I want myself, and MUST have 500,000 lbs for Shipping.

J. M. GATTIS.

Feb. 2nd '74 41.

THE NEW WILSON UNDERFEED.

PRICE $30.

At Webb's Warehouse.

At Webb's Warehouse.

At Webb's Warehouse.

At Webb's Warehouse.

At Webb's Warehouse.

At Webb's Warehouse.

At Webb's Warehouse.

At Webb's Warehouse.

At Webb's Warehouse.

At Webb's Warehouse.

At Webb's Warehouse.

At Webb's Warehouse.

At Webb's Warehouse.

At Webb's Warehouse.

At Webb's Warehouse.

At Webb's Warehouse.

